Your mower is likely to throw out clouds of blue smoke, just as a 2 stroke engine does. The spark plug may become oily and fouled, misfire and splutter/stall. However, it's not a really serious problem and you're not going to cause any permanent damage. The easiest solution is to get a tube and syphon the 2 stroke mix out of the mower's fuel tank.

The 2 cycle Suzuki was the highest displacement to power ratio ever put on a mower, but if they weren't kep't clean they smoked,hence the EPA did away with them. As long as you have one with good compression and a good carb keep mowing, but blow out the air cleaner every day, keep the air filter clean and you have a jewel from a bygone era.
