- Newton rejected the wave theory for good reason, but assumed the waves would be longitudinal like sound.
- A century later it was postulated that light could be a transverse wave.
- Based on the wave theory, Poisson, Arago and Fresnel predicted that there should be a bright spot at the center of a circular shadow.

When all three are present, wave phenomena always occur. Furthermore, as you will see, these principles are a great practical help both in understanding particular wave phenomena and in solving problems. I hope to convert you to a way of thinking about waves that will permanently change the way you look at the world.
